PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

— John H. McCunn, candidate for the bench of the Superior Court, New York, was once "Colonel" McCunn, of the 37th New York volunteers. General McClellan drove him in disgrace from the army. He was court martialed on a charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, found guilty, and sentenced to be reprimanded in general orders. And this is the reprimand administered by General McClellan: "The General commanding confirms the finding and sentence of the court, but in doing so he assumes that the sentence was made thus light in consideration of the inexperience of the accused. Colonel McCunn, it would appear from the record, is ignorant of the first great principle which should guide all soldiers of whatever rank, viz: implicit obedience to proper authority. The authority of Lieutenant Hunter, and his right to demand Colonel McCunn's pass, was most clear and unquestionable. It was the authority directly delegated through the provost marshal of the General commanding this army, and should have been obeyed as respectfully and implicitly as if the demand had been made by the General in person. The manner of the officer making the demand should have had no influence, but the colonel should have obeyed the order respectfully and promptly. If the manner of Lieutenant Hunter was improper—and that it was so is by no means clear to the General commanding—it was the duty of Col McCunn to have retained his self possession and self-respect, and to have complied with the direction to show his pass, trusting to subsequent action for redress. Colonel McCunn showed by his demeanor, as it appears on the record, that he has yet to learn at least two things before he becomes competent to command a regiment, and these are self command and respect for proper authority. The pass shown by Colonel McCunn was improper in form, and Lieutenant Hunter was perfectly right in declining to recognize its validity. The paper submitted by Colonel McCunn as his defence is in many respects irrelevant, and in others discreditable. The Court would have been entirely justified in refusing to receive it. The General commanding fully approves the finding of the Court which characterizes the conduct of Colonel McCunn as prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and desires to express the hope that this instance will be a sufficient warning to him and all other officers who may feel disposed to place themselves in opposition to the constituted military authorities." This scathing rebuke was read at the head of every regiment in the army, and Colonel McCunn, unable to

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

Sending an Infernal Machine.

The Recorder's Court in Chicago is engaged in the trial of Nehemiah Hodge, a lawyer of North Adams, Massachusetts, for the crime of sending an "infernal machine" to a man named Whipple, with the intent of killing him. In 1849 Hodge invented and patented an improvement in railroad brakes, which has since come into extensive use on the Western railroads. Whipple purchased territorial rights for the sale of this patent, but the parties subsequently quarrelled, and on the 1st of January, 1863, he received a box at a railroad office in Chicago, which proved to be filled with explosive materials. Forewarned by an anonymous letter, Whipple escaped injury, and afterward caused the arrest of Hodge for the crime of which he stands charged. The box is thus described by the Chicago Times:

"Mr Whipple did not, of course, proceed to open a box of which he had reason to entertain such ugly suspicions with the indifference with which he would have cracked an egg. On the contrary, he took the first step in opening it by inserting two sharp wedges, united by a transverse bar, for a little distance under the cover. He then, in company with several others, took the box to the pier, between warehouses A and B, and placed it, with the wedges uppermost, immediately under weights, which were raised to the top of a crane by ropes 300 feet long, so as to give those who handled them good lee-way in case of danger. The weights were dropped upon the wedges, and the contents of the box exploded in fire and smoke, with a report like a cannon.

"Arrangements having been made to save the fragments, a subsequent examination of it revealed the ingenious construction of the machine. The breaking of the lid loosed a pin which held a hammer. This hammer worked with a spring, and when released struck with great force one of Smith & Wesson's percussion cartridges, which, in turn, fired the powder, separated from the machinery by a thin partition."

An Unfaithful Wife—An Infuriated Husband—Almost a Murder.

A statement of a stabbing case in East Windsor, by a man named Phillips, of Springfield, appears in the Springfield Republican: It seems that Charles Miller, an armorer, who worked nights, and had plenty of leisure time afternoons, formed an acquaintance with Mrs. A. W Phillips, the wife of a laborer living near the cemetery, and a short distance from Pine street, and having two children. The acquaintance soon became intimacy of an improper character, and Phillips, who is of rather fiery disposition, accidentally found it out a few weeks since, and made a pretty emphatic protest against it. Mrs. Phillips then threatened to leave her husband, but was induced to remain. Some days later, however, upon the occurrence of a brisk family quarrel, she departed, and went to the house of her brother, Rufus Abbey, of East Windsor, Connecticut. Her husband followed her, as previously stated, and endeavored to carry out the habeas corpus, but unsuccessfully. Miller arrived Sunday morning, doubtless by appointment with Mrs Phillips, and the ire of her husband was a good deal roused in consequence. After some violent language had passed between them, and when Miller's back was toward him, Phillips drew a knife and stabbed him two or three times in the side, and immediately fled. Officers were soon put on his track, who entered the front door of his uncle's house at East Windsor, just as he retired through the back door. He was afterwards traced to Windsor Locks, but he again eluded his pursuers, and about 12 o'clock Saturday night returned to East Windsor to execute his threat of burning Mr. Abbey's property if he harbored his wife. The two barns burned were filled with hay and grain, and were completely destroyed, the loss being about $1 200. At last accounts the whereabouts of Phillips had not been discovered, and Miller remained in a very precarious condition.

Freaks of a Lunatic.

At 3 o'clock Sunday morning a lunatic named Robertson, a resident of Brush Valley, Indiana county Pennsylvania, escaped from his room in Dixmont Hospital, by biting through a portion of the window-casing, by which he was enabled to remove the sash. He had been in the habit of tearing his clothing from his person, and had to be kept almost nude. When he got the window sash removed, it became necessary for him to clothe himself in some way. A large blanket was obtained, and with his teeth and hands he tore a hole in the blanket at one end large enough to admit his head. Two holes were then made at proper distances, through which he thrust his arms. He then tore the blanket up the centre, and with each half covered his legs by binding the blanket around them with strips torn off for that purpose. His whole body was covered in this way, even to his feet, over which a portion of the blanket had been turned and tied. He had taken off his pair of red flannel, of which he made a neat comical looking cap or turban. It was kept in shape by weeds, which he had inserted for that purpose.

In this wild and fantastic costume he left the hospital, before daylight, and took over the hills towards Allegheny. On the way up, and wandering about

What the Rebels Say of General Grant.

[From the Richmond Whig, Oct. 27]

Rosecrans has been removed from the Army of the Cumberland, and Major General Ulysses S. Grant takes command of that department and of the Army of Tennessee (Grant's army) the Army of the Cumberland (Rosecrans' late army,) and the Army of Kentucky (Burnside's). Thomas, the renegade Virginian, and once ultra Secessionist, takes the immediate command vacated by Rosecrans.

So much we learn from a New York paper, which, on the strength of the announcement, bursts into the following hyperbole: "It now remains to the great and unconquerable hero of the Mississippi valley—who has defeated more armies, reduced more strongholds, and conquered more territory than all our (Yankee) other generals put together, or than any general since the days of Napoleon the First—it remains for Major General Grant to overcome the rebels now entrenched among the mountains of the West, as he has already routed them through the length and breadth of the great river of the West."

These are sounding sentences and not deficient in capital letters. Let us look a little into the history of the new Ulysses. A regimental quartermaster in the old army, he was famous only for the love of strong drink. His first appearance in the present war was at Belmont, where, in conjunction with McClernand, he surprised a Confederate camp and would have gained a victory if reinforcements had not arrived and whipped him back to his boats. With the exception of McClellan's little successes in Western Virginia, this was the first affair in which the Yankees had not been disgracefully beaten and routed. Grant was therefore promoted and placed in command of 80,000 or 100,000 men gathered in front of Sydney Johnston at Bowling Green. The winter floods enabled the enemy to carry the inadequate defences near the mouths of the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers, to land men at pleasure below Fort Donelson, and to attack it simultaneously by land and water. The garrison at this place was very small in comparison with the investing force, and the lines of fortification, in many places, weak. A heroic defence was made. For three days the enemy was repulsed with fearful slaughter, his losses in dead alone being nearly as large as our whole garrison. The place was not carried by assault, but capitulated. Very many of the men remonstrated against the surrender, and few now doubt that, by proper management, the whole of them could have cut their way out without serious resistance. In these two fights—at Belmont and Donelson—the great Ulysses was in one instance defeated positively, and in the next gained a victory of which only a Yankee would or could boast. The acquisition of territory was large, it is true; but this was due less to Grant's generalship than to the imbecility of the Confederate authorities.

Grant's next appearance was at Shiloh. In the first day's fight he was surprised and shamefully beaten. On the second day, Buell, who was Grant's superior, and had arrived with heavy reinforcements, took command, and to him is due the credit, such as it is, of attacking a disorganized army, half the size of his own, and of failing signally to make it do more than relinquish at leisure a part of the enormous spoils which it had won the day before. Here there was no victory to any one on the Yankee side, and certainly none to Grant.

After Sherman's failure at Vicksburg, Grant supersedes him. With unlimited men and means at his command he attempts no assault, but waits patiently till the naval officers have succeeded in running both gunboats and transports past the Confederate batteries. Marching his men rapidly down the west bank of the river, he ferries them over and precipitates them upon Grand Gulf—a strong position, which, like Donelson, was incompletely fortified and feebly garrisoned. Grant's success at this point was due more to the gunboats than to his own skill. And now occurred the only movement which entitles him to praise and evinces generalship. With a celerity unexampled in the history of Yankee warfare, he pushed forward his huge columns, upset Pemberton without the least difficulty, invested Vicksburg, established his communications with the river both above and below the city, protected his rear from Johnston by formidable works, and, after a number of unsuccessful attempts to storm the place, sat down leisurely to reduce it by siege, which he at length did, without serious molestation either in front or rear.

Here again, as at Donelson, he was indebted more to the Confederate Government than to his own genius for his success. He showed energy by the rapidity of his movements, and displayed skill in interposing his army between Pemberton and Johnston; but if either his courage or his skill had been extraordinary he would have crushed his incompetent antagonist in Vicksburg as easily almost as he had done at Baker's creek—a battle over which the Yankees made a great deal of noise, but in reality none at all; for we remember that one of the ablest Confederate officers engaged in it laughed at the idea of dignifying it with the name of battle. It was not Grant's generalship so much as his opponent's utter inexperience in field fighting which enabled him to carry everything before him at Champion's Hill like a whirlwind.

...TION OF GERMAN RADICALS.

...e expected that the recent "Convention of ...man Radicals" would elicit considera... ...ment from the American press, and we ...ched the utterances of our contempora... ...ith considerable interest. We are con... ...strained to say that the discussion has been temperately conducted in the main. The platform adopted by the Convention is generally admitted to have been unexceptionable; the only point that has provoked serious criticism is the proposal, by amendments to the Federal Constitution, to abridge, in some way not clearly defined, the rights of the individual States with regard to their relation to the Federal Government. Considering how mischievous the ultra doctrine of the Calhoun school on this point has proved, it is not surprising that loyal citizens should desire some restrictions upon it. The mistake of the Convention, we think, was in the crude form in which they declared their views, and perhaps also in discussing at all a question of such intricacy and grave import that even matured American statesmen have feared to raise an issue upon it. ...

NOW AND THEN.

There is something suggestive in the recent meeting of the friends of the Union in the city of Baltimore. We find it difficult to realize that, in this year 1863, many thousands of loyal men should assemble in a city whose streets were crimsoned with the first blood of the rebellion. This city of Baltimore, which two years ago it was necessary to bring under the guns of Fort McHenry; this Baltimore, where Union men were murdered and the Union flag insulted; this Baltimore, whose mob compelled many of her best citizens to fly into exile; is now as loyal as any city in the great North. Nor is there anything in the demonstration more suggestive than this—that the leading orators were the Secretary of the Treasury and Henry Winter Davis. We recognise Mr. Davis as the pioneer of emancipation in Maryland. He has identified himself with the advance radical sentiment of that State, and has never faltered in his devotion to freedom. His nomination in Baltimore is a retribution that time has speedily paid; for, in this Baltimore, he was defeated by the influence of the rebel sympathizers when he made his last canvass. Mr. Chase is a member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet. He is identified more closely, perhaps, than some of his associates with that sentiment which the rebels most detest—the sentiment that demands earnest, unflinching, and decisive prosecution of the war. He represented the President, who two years before had been compelled to ride through Baltimore in the darkness of the night, to avoid the assassin and ruffian. ...

THE FIGHT AT LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

Great Gallantry of Geary's Division.

THE ENEMY'S BREASTWORKS TAKEN AT THE POINT OF THE BAYONET.

The following was received at headquarters of the army yesterday:

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE,
October 29—11.30 P. M.

Major General H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief:

In the fight of last night the enemy attacked Geary's division, posted at Wauhatchie, on three sides, and broke into his camp at one point, but was driven back in most gallant style, by part of his force; the remainder being held in reserve.

Howard, while marching to Geary's relief, was attacked in flank, the enemy occupying in force two commanding hills on the left of the road. He immediately threw forward two of his regiments, and took both at the point of the bayonet, driving the enemy from his breastworks and across Lookout creek. In this brilliant success over their old adversary, the conduct of the officers and men of the 11th and 12th corps is entitled to the highest praise.

G. H. THOMAS, Major General.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

From Grant's Army.

KNOXVILLE, October 30.—Our forces, which occupied London, have retired to the north side of the river, and now occupy the heights commanding London. Other dispositions are unchanged.

NASHVILLE, October 30.—Lieutenant Colonel Shively, of the 1st Middle Tennessee Infantry, attacked Hawkins and other guerrilla chiefs near Piney Factory, and routed and pursued them to Centreville, where Hawkins made another stand, attacking the Federals while crossing the river. Hawkins was again routed and pursued until his force was dispersed, with a loss of twenty killed and sixty-six prisoners, including Griffith, formerly editor of the Nashville Union and American. Our loss was trifling.

Startling Disclosures in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 1.—An extraordinary case of treason has recently come to light, implicating several persons in this city, Columbus, Covington, and Newport, in conspiring to release rebel prisoners at Camp Chase, and to overthrow the State government. The conspiracy was brought to light by United States detectives, who were supposed, by the parties implicated, to be spies from the rebel army, and were treated with full confidence. The plot, as disclosed to the detectives, was that an attack should be made on Camp Chase, in effect the release of the prisoners confined there, numbering 3,500, seize the arsenal at Columbus, take possession of the penitentiary, and release John Morgan and other rebel officers confined there; and then to commence the rebel campaign in Ohio.

United States Marshal Sands and Provost Marshal Major Reany arrested the following persons implicated in the plot: Chas. W. H. Cathcart, of Columbus, formerly a school commissioner of Ohio; J. D. Cressop, of Columbus, formerly sutler of the 18th regulars; who were to lead the attack on Camp Chase; ...

The Scenery Surrounding Chattanooga—The City—General Garfield—The Effect of Recent Storms—Jeff. Davis with the Rebels—Reports from the Enemy.

[Correspondence of the New York Tribune.]

CHATTANOOGA, October 17, 1863.

The reputation enjoyed by Chattanooga for local attractions was based, even in ante-war times, upon the grandeur and picturesqueness of the surrounding mountain scenery, rather than the characteristics of the town itself. Nature has done far more to beautify the spot than the hands of man. We owe it not for its magnificent coinures of lofty mountains, clad with grand forests, and girted with broad, blue water-courses, varying with charming valleys, Chattanooga would hardly touch the sense of the beautiful. With the exception of the few blocks forming the only business, the town wants compactness. The buildings are scattered after a somewhat promiscuous fashion over the hills and ravines constituting the site. Nor is this drawback to an impressive aspect of the whole compensated for by the style of the business and dwelling houses. Plainness, not the neat New England architecture, but that disclosing bad taste and slovenliness one finds so universally through the South—characterize all. And yet, I have not noticed a single public or private building apt to captivate, and cannot help coming to the conclusion that even a third-class Northwestern town would lose nothing by comparison with Chattanooga.

The contrast of the imposing surroundings with the repulsiveness of the town is become still more marked by the defacing effect of war upon the latter. The work of deformation commenced by Bragg's squalid hordes is being rapidly completed, under the impulses of dire necessity, by our own troops. Portions of the suburbs, lying along Chattanooga Creek, had to be mercilessly razed to the ground, for the better security of our front. Some fifty houses were thus demolished. The fine groves adorning the hills over which our fortifications had to be extended fell under the axe. In the town proper, also, many houses have been leveled, and made to supply partly the camps with firewood and brick chimneys, and partly material for military building purposes. ...

... consequences in full view, the people of two great Northern States have recorded their voice in favor of support ... of the Administration, and there is no doubt they offer a good sample of the state of feeling in the whole country. If, then, the whole of the 300,000 men be not raised by volunteering, we may be sure that a very large portion will be, so that there will be little difficulty in filling up the quota by conscription. All those who do not want to fight are interested in finding out who can be induced to undertake the task. The merchant with a large business, the father with a family, the man who holds his own individual life to be many times the value of the Union, and the great army of contractors, feeding fat on munitions of war, all will be so many recruiting officers for the army of the United States. Even the peace Democrats, the opponents and haters of the war, will be pressed into the service, and compelled by the all-powerful law of self preservation to aid—for in case of failure they are as amenable to the conscription as the rest. Moreover, the municipalities, as they have repeatedly done before, will aid, by voting large sums of money to give as bounties to volunteers, being sustained in so doing by the united voice of the community. None, not even the admirers of Woodward, Seymour, or Vallandigham, will object to such appropriations. In this way almost all the wealth of the country will be consecrated for one purpose—the procuring of the three hundred thousand volunteers. Large bounties, larger than any given before, may be needed, but they will be forthcoming. And if, after all, less than the quota demanded should be raised, there still remains the conscription. That the Government will be sustained by the people in enforcing it, we think every proof that can be exceeded has been given. It is not upon that point that the Administration of Abraham Lincoln will break down.

Travelling by Rail at the South.

A lady who has just arrived in this city from Macon, Ga., where she has been a teacher six years, gives an interesting account of travelling by rail down South. CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE LABORATORY AT THE NAVY-YARD.—The laboratory at the Navy-yard, under the superintendence of John Clapham, where cartridges and fuses are made, presents a brisk and busy appearance at the present time. More has been accomplished in the department during the past month than in any previous month since the commencement of its operations. Strange to say only one explosion has taken place during the past twenty years, and that happened about sixteen months ago.

HELD AS A THIEF.—Several hotels have lately been robbed, among them the Kirkwood House, United Hall, and Kirby House. The robberies, it is supposed, have been committed by a young man named Frederick Edwards, who was arrested a few days ago for playing the detective. A portion of the stolen articles have been recovered by officers McDevitt and Parker. The young man was committed to jail by Justice Clayton for a further hearing.

THE COURTS MARTIAL IN THE CITY.—The Augur court-martial met at the usual hour on Saturday morning. The Sutler case was continued. Mr Worthington, Inspector of the Commissary Department at Baltimore, was examined as a witness. The case will be continued to-day. The Davis case was concluded by the Hays court-martial on Saturday morning, after which the court adjourned until the 9th of the present month.

SENT TO THE OLD CAPITOL.—John Hazel, the proprietor of a restaurant and cigar store, on A street, Capitol Hill, and his barkeeper, William Reilly, were placed in the Old Capitol on Saturday by Captain Alty, commander of the guard at that prison, on the charge of furnishing liquor to a rebel prisoner now in the Capitol. His house was closed and his whiskey confiscated.

RELIEVED FROM THE COURT-MARTIAL.—General Hays has been relieved from the court-martial of which Major Gaines is judge advocate, and ordered to New York, where he will perform the duties of Assistant Provost Marshal General, Superintendent of Volunteer Recruiting Service, and Chief Mustering and Disbursing Officer for the first ten districts of New York, including New York city.

YOUNG THIEVES.—Four small boys (bootblacks) were arrested for making numerous depredations, and taken to the Fourth ward station. On Saturday morning, they were sent to the workhouse for sixty days, by Justice Thompson. They belong to a gang, designated by the police as forty thieves who are in the habit of robbing stores, freight cars, market stalls, and everything else they can lay their hands on.

RECEIVING FURLOUGHS.—A large number of sick and wounded soldiers are now receiving furloughs for a short time in order that they may visit their homes. They will no doubt be greatly benefitted by the change. The hospitals, during their absence, can also be repaired and put in excellent order.

CLEAR THEM OUT.—The grand jury are now engaged every day, in cases of keepers of bawdy-houses. Twenty indictments were found on Friday, and seven on Saturday, against parties residing in every part of the city. We hope their efforts may be successful in clearing them out.

COMMITMENTS.—On Saturday seventeen cases were admitted to the Central Guard-house. Yesterday but six were stowed away. As soon as the troops are paid off there will be a large influx of visitors at the "Central." The soldiers will then endeavor to escape the guard to spend their money in the city.

BELGIAN PAVEMENT.—Major French, Commissioner of Public Grounds, has asked, in his report, which is to be laid before Congress, for an appropriation for paving Pennsylvania avenue with the Belgian pavement. This is an excellent idea, and will make a decided improvement in the appearance of the avenue.

TRYING TO SELL A HORSE.—A small boy was arrested by officer Milstead, near the Capitol, for endeavoring to sell a mare and colt in his possession for $25. The animals were turned over to the property clerk. The boy's name is Tallifero.

SENT IN FROM EDWARD'S FERRY.—A member of the 8th Virginia cavalry, named John Ball, was taken prisoner by the cavalry guard stationed at Edward's Ferry, and sent to this city. On Saturday Provost Marshal Todd committed him to the Old Capitol.

DEATH FROM AN ACCIDENT.—William Malloy, a quartermaster's laborer under Superintendent Jackson, while leaning against a wall the roof, which was gravelled, fell upon him and mutilated his body to such an extent that he died shortly afterwards.

TO BE REMOVED.—Owing to the constant complaints of confectioners, who pay high taxes and heavy rents, Superintendent Webb will soon notify the keepers of fruit-stands on our principal thoroughfares that they must remove them immediately.

SUPPOSED DESERTERS.—Patrick Hunter and John Becker, supposed deserters; John Segar, 2d New Jersey cavalry, and Charles Wilson, 7th Pennsylvania, deserters, were committed to the Central yesterday by Captain Todd.

SUPPOSED REBEL SPY.—A blockade runner, calling himself W. E. Sparrow, was arrested in this city, and, by order of the provost marshal committed to the Old Capitol prison. He is believed to be a rebel spy.

TROOPS ARRIVED.—Four recruits for the Ohio cavalry, twenty-seven convalescents from Boston harbor, and seventy-six convalescents from Baltimore all arrived at the Soldiers' Rest.

CITY ITEMS

THE UNION.—The German society, "Union," will meet at Mr. List's hotel, No. 360 C street, at 8 o'clock this evening. The members are requested to attend, as some business of importance will be brought up.

From the army hospital—the bloody battle field—the mansion of the rich and humble abode of the poor—from the office and the sacred desk—from the mountain-top, distant valleys, and far-off islands of the ocean—from every nook and corner of the civilized world—is pouring in the evidence of the astonishing effects of DRAKE'S PLANTATION BITTERS. Thousands upon thousands of letters like the following may be seen at our office:

REEDSBURY, Wis., Sept 16, 1863.

"* * * * I have been in the army hospitals for fourteen months—speechless and nearly dead. At Alton, Ill., they gave me a bottle of Plantation Bitters. * * * Three bottles restored my speech and cured me. * * *

C. H. FLAUTE."

SOUTH WARSAW, O., July 15, 1863.

"* * * One young man, who had been sick and not out of the house for two years with Scrofula and Erysipelas, after paying the doctors over $150 without benefit, has been cured by ten bottles of your bitters. * * *

EDWARD WOUNALL."

The following is from the Matron of the Union Home School for the Children of Volunteers:

HAVEMEYER MANSION, FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET,
NEW YORK, August 2, 1863.

"DR. DRAKE: Your wonderful Plantation Bitters has been given to some of our little children suffering from weakness and weak lungs with most happy effect. One little girl, in particular, with pains in the head, loss of appetite, and daily wasting consumption, on whom all medical skill had been exhausted, has been entirely restored. We commenced with but a teaspoonful of Bitters a day. Her appetite increased; strength and health followed. * * * * Respectfully,

MRS. O. M. DEVOE."

"* * * I owe much to you, for I verily believe the Plantation Bitters have saved my life.

REV. W. H. WAGGONER, Madrid, N. Y."

"* * * Thou wilt send me two bottles more of thy Plantation Bitters. My wife has been greatly benefitted by their use.

Thy friend, ASA CURRIN, Philadelphia, Pa."

"* * * I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, and had to abandon preaching. * * * The Plantation Bitters have cured me.

REV. J. S. CATHORN, Rochester, N. Y."

"* * * Send us twenty four dozen more of your Plantation Bitters, the popularity of which are daily increasing with the guests of our house.

SYKES, CHADWICK, & CO.
Proprietors Willard's Hotel, Washington, D. C."

"* * * I have given the Plantation Bitters to hundreds of our disabled soldiers with the most astonishing effect.

G. W. D. ANDREWS,
Superintendent Soldiers' Home, Cincinnati, O."

"* * * The Plantation Bitters have cured me of liver complaint, of which I was laid up prostrate and had to abandon my business.

H. B. KINGSLEY, Cleveland, O."

"* * * The Plantation Bitters have cured me of a derangement of the kidneys and urinary organs that has distressed me for years. It acts like a charm.

C. C. MOORE,
Agent for Colgate & Co, 254 Broadway."

&c., &c., &c., &c., &c.

The Plantation Bitters make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Wintergreen, Sassafras, Roots, Herbs, &c., all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix Rum.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try them.

They are recommended by the highest medical authorities, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and harmless.

NOTICE.—Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters in bulk or by the gallon is a swindler and impostor. We only put it up in our log cabin bottles. Beware of bottles refilled with imitation deleterious stuff for which several persons are already in prison. See that every bottle has our United States Stamp over the cork, and signature on steel plate side labels.

Sold by respectable dealers throughout the habitable globe.

202 Broadway, N. Y.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday was cloudy, with occasional rain.

THE NEW SYSTEM OF CANADIAN TELEGRAPH.

Portland and Quebec, was also the fortunate recipient of the first message, but the honor of the inauguration of Judge Allen in the metropolis of Canada cannot be claimed by any other than the Montreal Telegraph Company, for the new wire is their property, and the message was sent from their office. The Montreal Company have held a contract with the Government for the transmission of the Provincial mails between Quebec and Montreal, and have established offices at the various stations on the route, for the purpose of receiving and forwarding the mails, and the contract is entered into duly. Persons who desire to communicate by telegraph with any point on the Grand Trunk Railway will be supplied by the organization of three counties, and the company therefore assures the world that it will be able to assume territory of the road hereafter.

The telegraphic system of the Province of Canada, under the new law, is very simple, consists of running wires from the principal cities to the Provincial boundaries. The rates are very low, and the Government, by the new law, will not be liable to the Montreal Company, for which the line is leased, for any loss or damage that may occur to the line.

The Detroit papers say there is considerable excitement among the Canadians over the new law, owing to the fact that twenty or thirty cents per hour are about to be charged for messages sent over the Provincial telegraph lines, which, heretofore, have been transmitted free of charge. The belief has extended to many of the merchants of the new Dominion, by whom a large amount of business is done with the United States, that the Government intends, by the new law, to monopolize all the money transmitted by telegraph, and that the Montreal Company is only a tool in the hands of the Government.

NEW LINE OF STEAMERS.—The New Hampshire is advertised, in another column, to leave the same gentlemen of Portsmouth, Manchester, and Concord, to the regret of the Portsmouth and Worcester Company, with a capital of $600,000, and a line of steamers to run from Portsmouth, making a line of steamers between Portsmouth, Boston, and New York, for the accommodation of the inland passengers.

QUICK WORK.—A form of blood manufacturer in Lincoln, Saturday, was arrested for selling liquor on Sunday by rapid work, twenty had a full of water and sold it for whiskey. He was arrested by the police, who found the whole stock in trade, and the bottles in sight, in twenty-five hours from the time he sold it to the man who was buying goods.

An old bachelor, Dr. Johnston, of Jonesboro', Indiana, has "the time that killed him, ere 40 with a young wife, and a child every year. He is now living a life of misery. Last week he was found by a friend hanged to the limb of a tree, and cut down, when he would have hanged himself better. After his life-saving, he said he was crossing from Jonesboro' to Fairmount, and was thinking of his troubles, when he came to the conclusion that he would end them by hanging, and selected the tree for the purpose.

A correspondent of the New Haven Palladium says that a young man who was married on Saturday, the 7th inst., to a young lady of that city, was arrested on the following Monday, on a charge of bigamy. It appears that he had married a young lady in Connecticut, and left her, and then went to New Haven, where he married the young lady who was arrested. The first wife has since arrived in New Haven, and the husband is in custody.

The cable trade of Maine continues to be very active. The steamer Hibernia, which sailed from Portland on Saturday, took over 300 tons of cable, and the Great Western will take about the same quantity.

On Saturday the city of Cincinnati lacked but four hundred votes of having a full vote, and fifteen hundred were to be missed for the number. Of the latter, one hundred and fifty were in the Soldiers' Home.

Two old worlds at Cincinnati, Kansas, are making work in that young woman. The supply of men is not equal to the demand, and the girls are getting married right and left.

The man who imagined himself wise because he avoided matrimony in his younger days, has now been trying to get a gentleman one of the widows.

A fortune awaits any one who can find a spring, bubbling, sparkling, and free from saltpetre, and was unanimously voted to name it.

A warrior named Iron the old Hickock hangs in Nashville has been placed in charge of a new house in Memphis, Mexico.

An old bachelor says a woman may be quiet enough, sensible, kind, and all that, and yet be a shrew.

There was quite a heavy shower of sorts a few days since at Greenland, N. H., and about hail, thunder, lightning, and rain.

A news old bachelor says that he always looks under the carriage seat for the cure of his wrongs.
